

The AI SaaS Feasibility Checklist

Validate your AI idea before you spend $50k on engineering.

Most AI products fail long before the code does — the idea was never validated. Work through the checklist below. Tick every box you can honestly say yes to today. Your score at the end tells you whether to build, sharpen, or wait.

1. Problem & Market

- ☐ The problem is specific, painful, and frequent — not a nice-to-have.
- ☐ You can name the exact person who has this problem.
- ☐ People already pay (in time or money) to solve it today.
- ☐ The market is big enough to build a real business on.

2. The AI Angle

- ☐ AI makes the product meaningfully better — it is not a gimmick.
- ☐ You have, or can realistically get, the data the AI needs.
- ☐ You know what “good enough” accuracy looks like for users.
- ☐ You have estimated the AI / inference cost per user or action.

3. Product & Scope

- ☐ You can describe the single “wow” moment in one sentence.
- ☐ The MVP scope realistically fits in 4–8 weeks.
- ☐ You can list what you are deliberately NOT building yet.

4. Technical Feasibility

- ☐ A known approach exists (API, RAG, fine-tuning) — no research risk.
- ☐ You have defined latency and accuracy targets.
- ☐ You have a plan for wrong answers and hallucinations.
- ☐ The architecture can handle auth, billing, and multi-tenancy.

5. Business Model

- ☐ Pricing is tied to the value delivered, not just your costs.
- ☐ Unit economics still work after AI / inference costs.
- ☐ You have a believable path from MVP to first paying customers.

6. Go / No-Go

- ☐ You have shown the idea to 5+ potential users and they leaned in.
 - ☐ You would bet your own money on this before an investor's.
 - ☐ You know the one assumption that, if wrong, kills the idea.

Your Score

18 – 21 boxes — Strong signal. Your idea is worth building — move to a scoped MVP.

12 – 17 boxes — Promising. Tighten the boxes you left blank before you commit budget.

Under 12 boxes — Not yet. Validate the problem, market, and AI angle before spending.
